Penn Park 'connects' university to city

Penn Park, a 24-acre multi-level green space on the eastern edge of the University of Pennsylvania's campus, opened to the public for the first time Thursday.

"There was a time when Penn was walled off from the city," President Amy Gutmann said yesterday. "This is a true transformation where we're actually connecting ourselves to the city with a green space. The title of our master plan is called Penn Connects, and this truly connects us."

The park's amenities include two NCAA regulation athletic fields, a 470-seat multipurpose stadium, 12 tennis courts with 200-seat viewing stands, landscaped pathways and elevated footpaths.

The park also boasts sustainable elements. Its permeable synthetic turf fields do not require mowing and drain water into underground cisterns for reuse in on-site irrigation.

"There will be more opportunities for interaction as both the community and our students walk, bike, or run through the park," Vice President of Facilities and Recreation Anne Papageorge said. METRO/AW

Nutter butts heads with Council again

Mayor's earlier veto of Council's legislation to lessen but not end DROP overridden in first fall meeting ◗ No allies with Nutter on contentious issue

City Council voted unanimously Thursday afternoon to override Mayor Michael Nutter's veto of the perennially contentious DROP bill, but the mayor's spokesman insisted that Nutter's relationship with Council is "not unhealthy."

"There is always healthy friction between Philadelphia mayors and Philadelphia City Council, but the fact is that on most matters, the Council and the mayor find agreement," spokesman Mark McDonald said.

City Council appears unaware of that fact when it pertains to the most controversial city pension program. Nutter had vetoed City Council's amended DROP bill because he said the program should simply be eliminated.

"He has made a public commitment to keep fighting until DROP is ended," said Councilwoman Maria Quinones-Sanchez. "We're willing to look at other ways to cut costs, but if [Nutter] wants to end it, he needs to negotiate with the union," she said. "Otherwise, he's legally bound to keep DROP."

"The law-approving body in the city is City Council and their duty to is to listen to the overwhelming number of people who want the program to end," McDonald said, adding that, if Council does not pass legislation ending DROP before its final session in mid-December, the mayor's office will "work vigorously" with new members seated in January to explain the program's unsustainable financial burden.

One veto left alone

City Council tabled a bill to override Nutter's veto of paid sick leave legislation after its sponsor, Councilman Bill Greenlee, realized that he would not have enough votes for it to pass.

Greenlee said that he expects that to change as similar laws continue to be passed across the country.

"I would say to all the advocates: Don't lose hope," Greenlee said. "It's going to happen, it's just a matter of when." METRO/AW

Account muddled in trial

CENTER CITY. An eyewitness gave conflicting testimony Thursday about the fatal beating of a Lansdale man after a Phillies game in 2009.

Gary Weinrich, 43, testified that he saw two men run past him in Lot M and a few minutes later saw them kicking David Sale along with a third person. He identified two of the assailants as Charles Bowers and James Grove.

Under cross-examination, however, Weinrich could not recall whether he saw Bowers and Groves kick Sale. METRO/SDL

Art. Phillies mural

▶ The Phillie Phanatic helped unveil the rendering of a new mural that will eventually greet drivers heading north on the Schuylkill Expressway heading into Philadelphia.

Welcome to city of Phillies!

Thirty prominent players from the long, up-and-down history of the Philadelphia Phillies baseball franchise will make up most of a roughly five-story mural near Walnut Street Bridge. It'll be 3,750 square feet on the side of a building at 24th and Walnut streets. The painting will be finished by summer 2012. METRO

Mexican cartel linked to Philly drug network

Authorities said Thursday that they have shut down a direct pipeline into the city by one of Mexico's most dangerous drug cartels with the arrest of five people.

The arrests were the result of five months' work, which included wiretaps conducted by the Dangerous Drug Offender's Unit of the city District Attorney's Office, the Drug Enforcement Administration in Philadelphia and El Paso, Texas, as well as the FBI.

Authorities arrested three people in the Northeast on Sept. 8, including the alleged distributor for the Sinaloa Cartel, which operates in the Mexican provinces of Sinaloa and Juarez. Two more people were arrested in Texas.

"These arrests have struck a serious blow to the Sinaloa Cartel's efforts to establish a distribution center here in Philadelphia," said District Attorney Seth Williams. "This group has become notorious for acts of violence and intimidation of law enforcement and civilians in Mexico, so the impact of the success of this operation on the drug trade in Philadelphia is immeasurable."

▶ Weapons and 10 kilograms of cocaine were recovered.

Through intercepted conversations, investigators said they learned that street-level dealers in Philadelphia were re-establishing a connection with Sinaloa. The plan, authorities said, was for Sinaloa to become the exclusive distributor of heroin, cocaine and marijuana to the Philadelphia group.

Officials would not release the names of the defendants, citing the ongoing investigation and possible retaliation against the defendants. The three men arrested here will be prosecuted by the DA's office.

Opinion

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

BOSS BOB'S BIG PROBLEM

No doubt someone, somewhere, in the midst of our economic woes, has offered a magnificent bargain: A $350 thousand Lamborghini Murcielago for a mere quarter-million, a "castle in the hills" at a "chateau in the valley" price or a 20-carat diamond with a 5-carat tag.

You know how much money that has saved me? Not a penny. Because, much like the Women's National Basketball Association, that's a league in which I can not play. (For a lot of reasons, including a complex legal judgment, but you don't want to hear about my problems.)

One of the rules of consumerism is that a bargain is only a bargain if you can afford it. And one of the problems confronting President Obama's latest jobs plan is that even though it offers genuine, take-it-to-the-bank bargains for small-business owners to hire folks, it appears that some of those folks may not be able to afford this particular deal even if it is approved.

CNN=POLITICS

Quoted

"One of the rules of consumerism is that a bargain is only a bargain if you can afford it."

Here is the issue: Let's say Boss Bob down at ACME Latex Products would love to hire a new person in Sales at $30,000 a year. Bob looks into his shoe box full of money and says, "I've got $30K!" So far, so good. Then President Obama comes to Latexville and says, "You know, Bob, I'll give you several thousand dollars in incentives if you'll create that job." Even better!

But then Bob starts adding up how much it will cost to recruit and interview candidates, possibly take them to lunch at Subway, cover payroll taxes, offer some benefits and then come up with work space, a computer and a phone on top of adding him to the Holiday Sausage gift list. That job will actually cost ACME more like $40,000-$50,000. Suddenly that check from the government starts looking a bit thin. Bob picks up the phone. "Uh, Mr. President? While I appreciate the offer, I have to say no. I mean, the latex business is improving — but not that much."

The president clearly hopes that enough Boss Bobs will be lured by the promise of free money to take the plunge. But the buzz in the business press suggests the real, long-term expense of adding jobs when consumers are hurting has many Boss Bobs very jumpy. And changing that will be quite a job indeed.

Casey Anthony is on hook for $100K

Disgraced mother must pay for investigation costs, judge rules ◗ Bases steep fine on fact that she lied ◗ Detectives wasted money on her fake story

JOE RAEDLE/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Anthony

▶ People look on at the Caylee Anthony memorial that has been placed in the area where the 2-year-old's remains were found in Orlando, Florida.

Casey Anthony, the young Florida mother acquitted of killing her daughter, was ordered on Thursday to pay almost $100,000 to cover some of the expenses incurred after she falsely claimed 2-year-old Caylee had been kidnapped.

Judge Belvin Perry ruled that Anthony must reimburse $97,676.98 in investigative costs incurred between July 15, 2008 — when Anthony first told detectives her daughter had been kidnapped by a nanny — and September 29, 2008, when detectives determined Caylee likely was dead rather than missing.

Anthony was charged with Caylee's murder and four counts of lying to investigators. In a nationally televised trial this summer, Anthony was acquitted of the murder but found guilty of the lies.

Prosecutors requested she repay $517,000, the full cost several police agencies and the prosecutor's office said was incurred as a result of her lies.

Perry explained why he ordered the lesser payment from Anthony, who is living in an undisclosed location while serving a year of probation for a 2010 check-fraud case: "The state asks the court not to apportion any of the costs because [Anthony's] lies or series of lies are inextricably intertwined with the entire investigation."

Quoted

"Attempting to prove Ms. Anthony was a murderer proved she was a liar." JUDGE PERRY

Perry left open the door to increasing the amount Anthony must pay. The judge told the Orange County Sheriff's Office to provide more detail about the work of 30 deputies and employees on the case so the cost of their time and effort may be added to Anthony's bill.

So far, Perry awarded $61,505.12 to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, $10,283.90 to the Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation, $25,837.96 to the sheriff's office and $50 to the State Attorney's Office.

Anthony's lawyer couldn't be reached for comment. REUTERS

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate WrittenOffers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have themgive you legitimate offers in writing.Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

WhyWeCan Usually Pay MoreThanOther Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, oldwatches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually paymore.

ANoteRegarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927SQuarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition.The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Using recycled precious metals for jewelry is an important way for jewelers to source precious metals more responsibly. Precious metals that have already been used in some way, including "vintage," "renewed," or "reclaimed" metals from jewelry and electronics, are not directly implicated in the destructive impacts of mining. They do not share responsibility for the impacts of mining in the same way that newly mined gold does.

Web record: Wedding of the century

The royal wedding of Britain's Prince William and Kate Middleton this spring was one for the history books — and the record books, too.

According to the latest edition of the Guinness Book of World Records, the April 29 ceremony at Westminster Abbey was watched online by 72 million viewers, earning it the title for "Most Live Streams for a Single Event."

Like its predecessors, this year's edition of the 56-year-old annual reference book is chock full of all kinds of examples of extraordinary achievement, high and low. And Middleton, now known as the Duchess of Cambridge, isn't the only royal in there.

Celebrities were among this year's winners. Lady Gaga's 11 million Twitter followers won her the record for most followers on Twitter while her song "Poker Face" won the most weeks on the U.S. digital hot songs chart. REUTERS

Nailed it!

Chris Walton — a Las Vegas-based singer who goes by stage name "The Dutchess" — has nails that measure more than 19 feet combined and won the title for longest fingernails in this year's edition.

FRED DUVAL/FILMMAGIC

▶ The wedding was pretty popular in the real world, too: Thousands of well-wishers flocked to London for the event.

Trader who lost big is accused of fraud

LONDON. UBS said a trader who lost the Swiss bank around $2 billion in unauthorized deals had been arrested in London, with sources close to the situation naming the man as 31-year-old Kweku Adoboli.

Adoboli — working as a director of exchange traded funds and Delta 1 trading, according to his profile on LinkedIn — was arrested during the night at UBS's London office on suspicion of fraud, the sources told Reuters on Thursday.

$2.3B

The loss effectively cancels out the $2.3 billion savings it had hoped to make in a cost-cutting program announced last month that will axe 3,500 jobs.

UBS said it discovered the problem on Wednesday afternoon, but gave no details of the trades involved. REUTERS

Arctic ice shrinking

NEW YORK. Sea ice on the Arctic Ocean shrank to its second-smallest extent since modern records began, in keeping with a long-term trend, the U.S. National Snow and Ice Data Center reported on Thursday.

Arctic Sea ice is an important sign of a changing climate, and what happens in the Arctic has a major influence on global weather patterns. REUTERS

FRED BEANS REPEATS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Doylestown, PA - Fred Beans, CEO and Founder of the Fred Beans Automotive Group located in Doylestown PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, September 17th at 9:30 AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, All 7 Fred Beans Doylestown locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Doylestown features new Ford, Lincoln, Mitsubishi, Dodge, Chrysler, Jeep, Hyundai, Nissan, Subaru, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Buick, GMC, and Saab vehicles. Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies for this sale.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interests."

Customers are encouraged to arrive as early as 9:00AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that is right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of September 16th after close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10,000,000 in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less than perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV home by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at all 7 Fred Beans Doylestown locations this Saturday, September 17th, at 9:30AM. Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive as early as 9:00AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 9:30AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first come, first serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So, if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van or sport utility vehicle, do not miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

For more information about this sale and directions to our locations please visit us online at fredbeans.com or call 1-866-920-9612

Music gets even less material Listeners will really be keeping their heads in the clouds It's great for you, but what do the artists make of it?

The revolution will be digitized

▶ On Spotify, you can raid the playlists of your Facebook pals.

As the music industry reluctantly drifts further and further away from selling tangible products and more and more exciting online options for listening have launched, we thought we'd consult with one group of people with a unique investment in this matter — the musicians. How do they feel about Spotify, which lets listeners share and listen to complete albums for free? Or how about the coming iCloud, which will allow users to store all of their MP3s with a third party, however illegally any of the files may have initially been obtained? — With additional reporting by Heidi Patalano and Linda Laban

Sameer Gadhia, Young the Giant

"Every artist would love to make millions, but it keeps the power with the people. Before it used to be a sure thing where if you had a record deal you'd make money and sell albums. Now it's a little bit harder and there's so many people you have to compete with. You compete with literally anyone who wants to put out albums online. It's a lot harder, but it produces better music. It's harder for the musicians but it's great for the fans."

David Wax, David Wax Museum

" I don't have any of those programs. I've heard really positive things about Spotify and my impression of it is very positive, but I've never actually dug into it myself. ... We don't hold dear to [our songs] at all, but they are important for a band that tours as much as we do. We sell a lot of records on the road and that's a big part of our income."

Quoted

"I actually think it's quite scary how you'd keep all of your information in one place, because it feels like somebody could hack into that quite easily." RAB ALLAN, GLASVEGAS

Conor Oberst, Bright Eyes

"Everything is changing. Right now I feel like we're living in this Wild West period and hopefully it'll get sorted out and we'll come to some place where the listeners and the fans can get the music quickly and conveniently and enjoy it and the people who make the music can get paid. I mean, that's the goal. I feel like something like Spotify could potentially work."

Janelle Monae

"Technology is definitely moving at a rapid speed, more than our brains can process. I just think man needs to think it over and think about the artists involved and make sure they're respectful of artist rights. Also, we as consumers need to ask ourselves what things we want to preserve. Do we want everything at our disposal? Or are there some things we want to go out and get, like albums. ... There has to be balance involved from the hands who are making them and the consumers who are buying into it."

"Too much of something can definitely keep you imbalanced." MONAE

Gem Archer, Beady Eye

"I don't think that anybody has got a f—ing clue. As a person, I'm genuinely a believer, I was born positive, so music will always be fine, but it's a strange era at the moment. ... When they start talking about not owning music and it being some strange concept in the sky somewhere [laughs] that's a little odd. I always thought it was like sheet music. [Laughs.] When records came out, all the publishers started s—ing themselves because they thought that part was over. It's a really strange time, but it's happening quicker now."

Zombies return from the grave

▶ The Zombies returned to the studio for the first time in six years for their new "Breathe Out, Breathe In."

On the Zombies' biggest hit, they sang that it was the time of the season for loving. It was a call to hearts in the Summer of Love of the late '60s, but by the time the song was released, the Brit band had already called it quits. Although absent as a group, they left behind a curiously titled classic album called "Odessey and Oracle," which many cite as a highly influential artifact from the psychedelic era.

Since reforming in 1990, the band has enjoyed a few bursts of activity and produced three new albums, including this year's "Breathe Out, Breathe In." But singer Colin Blunstone says he often wonders what the world would be like if the band had never split.

"We were 18 and 19 years old, and we hadn't really established a musical identity — and we had to do that in the glare of the spotlight over the next three years," he says of when the group had their first hit in 1965. "People might've thought we were the finished article because we had recorded 'She's Not There,' and in fact we were still looking for a way ahead, musically. ... I think we just about found it with 'Odessey and Oracle.' It would've been interesting to see what we would've done next, so there's a little bit of sadness for me because it was the end of the band, but also a lot of curiosity because I'd like to know what might've happened."

'Breathe Out'

The new album is not quite the logical progression from the delicate pop symphony of "Odessey." The songs have harder edges, but many of the trademark Zombie sounds are present: the effortless harmonies, the prevalence of Rod Argent's keys (whether they be swirling organs or perfect piano plunks), the wistful ballads and Blunstone's wispy voice — which sounds as clear as ever. At 66, this is amazing.

"I try to make sure that I do my singing lesson when we're on the road," he says. "I do it twice a day."

Surveying the City more closely

Motion City Soundtrack dig through their past to bring fans the '4 Albums. 2 Nights. 7 Cities.' tour

When's the ideal time to become a fan of a band? Right from the start? Perhaps, but then you're inevitably going to reach a day when they stop playing your favorite songs live. Show up to the party late and you may miss the good-old days. The idea behind Minneapolis' favorites Motion City Soundtrack's "4 Albums. 2 Nights. 7 Cities." tour is to make everyone happy. Over the course of two nights, they'll play their four records in their entirety, reaching back to 2003's debut "I Am the Movie," where the band established their Moog-heavy pop-punk sound.

Quoted

"This is really for the people who have been with us for a long time, that really miss certain songs."

GUITARIST JOSH CAIN, ON THE "4 ALBUMS. 2 NIGHTS. 7 CITIES." TOUR

"We had such success in Chicago when we had done it before [performing one different album over three nights in 2009], we felt like we wanted to bring it to some other people," guitarist Josh Cain explains. "This is really for the people who have been with us for a long time, that really miss certain songs."

Reaching back into the catalog is something fans of many bands wish might happen more often.

"At a normal show, once you have four records there is too much material for people to catch everything," he says. "People may love every song, but they're not what you'd play when you're trying to get a new audience to like you."

With a tour like this, it's safe to say the fans are already fully on board. It serves another, time-shifting purpose, Cain says.

"I think there's something about the way it transports people back to when they first saw us in whatever small venue in the middle of nowhere with five people, and saw us to do whatever it is that made them fall in love with coming to our shows."

From influenced to influential

When the band first formed in the late '90s, their keyboard punk style garnered plenty of comparisons to the likes of The Get Up Kids and Elvis Costello. Now the shoe is on the other foot. Is it an honor?

▶ "It depends on what the band sounds like," Cain jokes. "If the band is awesome, that's really cool — and it's a humbling thing. It's one of those thing you don't really believe, that people are that influenced by you they are creating their own music. But hopefully it's something we enjoy listening to and not 'Really? Oh we influenced that?'"

One way or another

Debbie Harry and Blondie are looking beyond their past, embracing technology and even teaming up with Amazon.com for their brand new album

Few would think to call Debbie Harry a geek, but the gorgeous Blondie singer has no problem with technology. In fact, she's always embraced electronic innovation.

"That's part of our business, really. We rely on technology to produce our music and perform concerts. A lot of our instruments are tied to computer or synthesizer technology. The change from analog to digital, that was a big change. But it's sort of more natural in a way; it's the way the brain actually operates, instead of the old mechanical way. I don't feel like a Luddite in any way," she declares.

Personal evolution is important, too; so the band's fall tour is not about revisiting their splendid hit songs like "Heart of Glass" or "Dreaming." The New York City-based new wave pop veterans' new album, "Panic of Girls," is out this week to add new sounds.

"I think that's the best part of it," Harry says of recording a new album. "We are in a very cushy position, because we are well known. But going around playing the older hits and everything wouldn't be, oh, I don't know ... it just wouldn't be as inspiring or interesting as trying to make new music. Let's face it: As our lives change, our experiences change and our insights improve. It's more relevant to sing or talk about things that are happening today. The world is changing so quickly. The difference in communications since the Internet came into being — the world is so different now and we're a part of it."

"Panic of Girls" became exclusively available through Amazon.com on Tuesday. Debbie Harry explains the partnership:

"Because we're independent, we don't have any distribution — so it's an ideal situation for us. On a personal level, I've been dealing with Amazon as a consumer for a long time. Anytime I've gotten anything from Amazon, it's been quick and painless."

... and ruins some rims in preparation for his role as a stunt driver in 'Drive' Why it never would have been made without the help of REO Speedwagon

For a guy who plays a stunt driver that moonlights as a getaway driver in "Drive," Ryan Gosling says he didn't get a whole lot of time behind the wheel in the film. "I drove myself to set and I drove myself home," he says with a laugh. But seriously, though. "I went to driving school, and I did a lot of the driving. But the cool stuff, I didn't do," he says. "But it was one of the best prep experiences I've ever had, because I'd basically just show up to this big parking lot, and there'd be a new Camaro or a new Mustang and we'd just ride it to the rims until it was smoking or it wouldn't go anymore, then we'd just go home and they'd tow it away and call us when it was fixed."

"Drive" was something of a meeting of the minds for Gosling and the film's director, Nicolas Winding Refn. "We set out to make a violent John Hughes movie, and I think that's what we did," Gosling says. "This movie wouldn't have happened if REO Speedwagon hadn't come on the radio" during a drive the actor and director shared one night while discussing the project. "So something happened in that car, and Nicolas and I were sharing the same dream and we spent the whole movie trying to figure out how that was possible."

Gosling and Winding Refn's shared dream apparently worked out great, as the actor and director are jumping into more projects together already. They're now developing a remake of "Logan's Run" — a project previously kicked around by a number of filmmakers. And they're getting ready to shoot a film about Thai kickboxing.

"We set out to make a violent John Hughes movie, and I think that's what we did."
GOSLING

With "Drive" already getting such positive reactions wherever they take it, there's even been talk of a sequel — even if it was originally just in jest. "We were joking for a while — but maybe it's not a joke — that it would be a prequel called 'Drive 2' where it's about Bernie [Albert Brooks] and Ron Perlman," he says.

NED EHRBAR
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

When Albert Brooks goes too far

As a producer on "Drive" as well as the star, Ryan Gosling played a major role in shaping the finished product with director Nicolas Winding Refn — which meant making some tough decisions. "The hardest scene to cut was the scene where Albert Brooks actually chokes a guy out on camera and he passes out. That was amazing," Gosling remembers. "I talked to Albert that night, and I said, 'Hey Albert, how'd the scene go?' And he goes, 'Ah ... I actually knocked the guy out. I choked him out. Is that bad?' You watch the guy's eyes roll into the back of his head and falls to the floor. Everyone thought he was acting, but he wasn't."

The argument for a remake

STEVE DIETL

▶ If it were a Saturday Night Live sketch, "Straw Dogs" would be called "Two a-holes go live in the swamp."

There are a lot of remakes out there that never should've happened; however, "Straw Dogs" won't fall under that category. Although in its new incarnation it will not get the classic status that the original 1971 version had, this pulpier take poses a strong argument for existing.

The story of "Straw Dogs" itself is clever enough to make up for marginal acting. James Marsden and Kate Bosworth play sinewy Hollywood expats renovating a house in the wife's hometown of Blackwater, Miss. As the couple's very un-Southern ways grate on the locals, something sinister begins to encroach on their marriage.

Moving the story from a British village to the Deep South was the best direction to take an Americanized version of the story. As James Marsden's character explains, the term straw dogs comes from an ancient Chinese practice of using ceremonial dogs made out of straw, which are treated with great reverence when used as offerings to the gods, but are thrown away once their purpose has been fulfilled. The analogy fits seamlessly in the setting of good old boys, who once the pride of the town as high school football stars, are left in their later years to lead unremarkable lives.

No one really needs to know how she does it

'I Don't Know How She Does It'
Director: Douglas McGrath
Cast: Sarah Jessica Parker, Greg Kinnear, Olivia Munn, Christina Hendricks, Pierce Brosnan
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●●○○○

▶ They're just perfect, perfect, perfect! Sarah Jessica Parker and Greg Kinnear are deeply in love in "I Don't Know How She Does It."

CRAIG BLANKENHORN/ THE WEINSTEIN COMPANY

Screenwriter Aline Brosh McKenna is like the McDonald's of female-friendly rom-coms. She churns 'em out good and regular and the meals always taste about the same. There's no denying that one of her earlier creations, "The Devil Wears Prada," was something of the "Citizen Kane" of working-girl-gets-it-all movies. But in this rom-com factory, sometimes the deep-fryer's not working right and you're left with the tepid mush that all these films really are.

Food talk aside — because really, who in this cast actually eats it, besides maybe Christina Hendricks — this is a film based on the book by the same name. By most accounts, it was a palatable story about a mom whose demanding job sometimes puts her at odds with mommy duties. Translated to movie shorthand, it becomes a screechy caricature that leaves little room for subtly.

There's no room to doubt if this woman is anything less than a modern-day martyr, because the script is pushing the message home so forcefully that any faults she has are nothing compared to the amazingness of what she's undertaking. It's like listening to someone do the humble-brag for 90 minutes.

The scribe of "DWP," "27 Dresses" and "Morning Glory" might've made some really tasty Big Macs in her time — but every once in a while, she's going to churn out a soggy Filet-O-Fish. So please pass the tartar sauce.

Pack this in their lunch box

Forget boring — and not to mention sugar-filled — PB&Js This school year, try developing your kid's palate with this Asian favorite

Weekend recipe

Fried rice

Pork fried rice gets a kid-approved makeover, and it's healthy enough for you to serve to the little ones guilt-free. It's made with ingredients you probably have on hand, so dinner can be on the table in a flash. Then, pack the leftovers for a healthy school lunch.

Game plan: Fried rice is just as delicious when made ahead and served cold. To do so, cook the recipe all the way through, then turn the rice out onto a large plate or baking sheet and spread it out so it can cool down quickly. When it's lukewarm to room temperature, place it in an airtight container and refrigerate it until ready to eat. Be sure to get the rice into the fridge within two hours of cooking to avoid any serious food-safety issues.

Ingredients

- 1 tablespoon peanut or vegetable oil
- ½ cup Canadian bacon, small dice
- 2 medium garlic cloves, finely chopped
- 4 cups steamed long-grain white rice, cold
- 2 large eggs, beaten
- ½ cup frozen pea and carrot medley
- ½ cup frozen shelled edamame
- 3 medium scallions, minced
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon toasted sesame oil

▶ All the kids are going to want to trade with your little one.

Instructions

1. Heat peanut or vegetable oil in a large, nonstick frying pan over medium heat. When it shimmers, tilt the pan to coat it evenly, add bacon and cook until just browned, about 5 minutes.

2. Add garlic and cook until fragrant, about 10 to 20 seconds. Add rice and stir-fry, breaking up the rice and cooking until it's heated through and coated with oil, about 3 to 5 minutes.

3. Evenly drizzle in beaten eggs and cook, stirring frequently, until rice is coated in egg and set, about 2 minutes. Add frozen vegetables and cook until thawed and cooked through, about 3 minutes. Add scallions, soy sauce and sesame oil. Cook until scallions just wilt, about 1 minute.

Tip

This fried rice is on the mild side, so be sure to have bottles of soy sauce and hot sauce on hand for the adults.

3 Things you won't see at Sunday's Emmy Awards

1 Host Jane Lynch's alter-ego, Sue Sylvester (or a least a whole lot of the "Glee" gym teacher)
"I think a little bit of Sue Sylvester goes a long way," says Lynch. "There's some ideas out there for Sue Sylvester. But I think we'll probably leave her track suit on the Paramount lot."

2 Reality TV overkill (even though reality TV megaproducer Mark Burnett serves as the award show's executive producer)
"There's not room for it," Burnett insists. "And by the way, I've probably been one of the big complainers of not enough reality on the Primetime Emmys; and now I find myself as the producer, and I'm exactly the opposite. The truth of the matter is reality television is seven out of the top 10 shows on television all the time — the most viewers by far. However, it's not full of stars. And therefore, it doesn't translate to an awards show — because people are tuning in for glamour."

WILLIAMS & HIRAKAWA/FOX

▶ Jane Lynch hosts the 63rd Primetime Emmy Awards on Sunday at 8 p.m. on Fox.

3 Three hours of boring (well, fingers crossed)
"I think awards shows, if they're just about giving out the awards, it can slow down," says Burnett, who has experience producing the MTV Movie Awards and People's Choice Awards. "When there's a lot of good bits along with [handing out statues] — you can plan for some of it, and some of it just happens — that's what makes it really great, live television.

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

– Dorothy Robinson will return on Tuesday.

We caught up with a Kardashian

We love us some Kardashian girls. Not only can they be counted on to produce a usable gossip item almost daily, we suspect that they smell really great and have an assortment of gum in their purses, too.

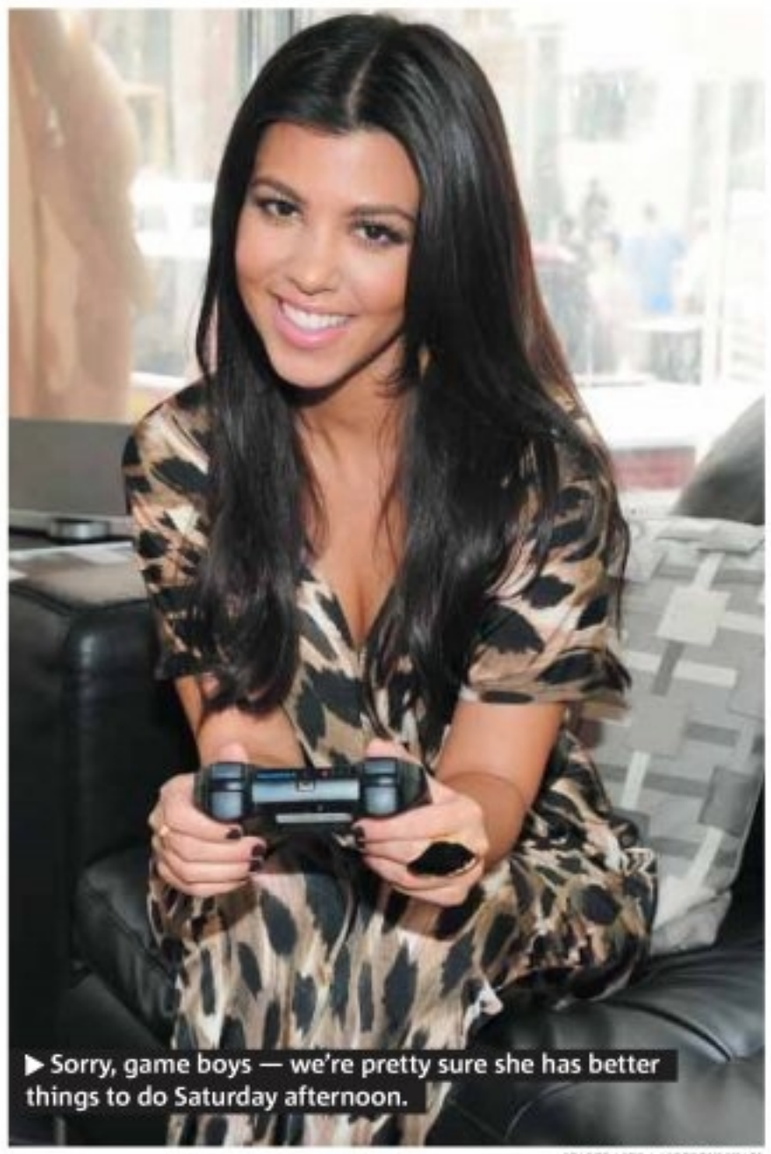
So when we were invited to get on a bus with Kourtney promoting the release of "Uncharted 3: Drake's Deception" for PlayStation? All aboard!

Kourtney was on hand to talk about the "half tuck," which the video game's title character sports. Essentially, it's the kind of messily tucked-in shirt that your mother would have disowned you for, but Kourtney digs it on her little one.

"Every time I dress Mason, I do the half tuck on him. I hate when guys wear their shirts completely tucked in, unless you're wearing a suit or a tuxedo," says KK (we were on the same bus with her — we earned this). "I love that so many people rock that look."

And we love that she is essentially a spokesperson for sloppy shirts. If anyone is looking to market grown-out highlights, too-short dress pants or frumpy cardigans, give The Word girls a call!

—With reporting by Cassandra Garrison



▶ Sorry, game boys — we're pretty sure she has better things to do Saturday afternoon.

▶ Holy hot yoga!

Namaste!

We were big fans of Gerard Butler's party-boy look. But we've got to admit, his new tanned-and-toned approach isn't so bad, either. "I ate my last meal in October, and I run about 40 miles a day," he told Us Weekly of the slim-down, which is for an upcoming role as a pro-surfer. "I'm joking! It's just doing a lot of cardio and extremely watching what I eat. I stopped lifting big weights and I'm doing yoga."

Talking points

Jay-Z already a father?

Jay-Z is happily expecting a child with wife Beyonce, but it may not be his first. Star magazine is reporting that the 41-year-old hip-hop icon fathered a love child with model Shenelle Scott nine years ago, before he and Beyonce were an item. Jerard Andrews, the father of the man who was previously believed to be the child's father, says DNA tests have concluded Jay-Z's paternity. "Shenelle told me that Jay-Z gave her $1 million to keep her mouth shut. My understanding is that he's paying her child support," Andrews says. "Shenelle took the money and bought herself a really nice house in Trinidad that the whole family lives in now."

Rodriguez and Diaz are done

The on-again, off-again relationship between Cameron Diaz and Yankees star Alex Rodriguez is reportedly off — again. "They broke up recently," a source close to the couple tells Us Weekly. "They're still very friendly and like each other. He has an enormous amount of respect for her." As it turns out, work got in the way this time: "She's very busy with her career," the source says. "And he's had injuries and wants to focus on his game. They're dedicated professionals."

'Housewives' to be fired?

A number of media outlets reported yesterday that Bravo execs had told Alex McCord, Jill Zarin and Kelly Bensimon they wouldn't be returning for the next season of "Real Housewives of New York." McCord told Metro last night: "I can only speak for myself, but I have not been fired. I have been told, however, that a decision will be made shortly. I'm not out — but I'm not in, either." Another insider told Metro that the Housewives who remained would do so on half their previous salary.

Pay attention to her!

Remember Michaele Salahi? Neither did we, so a brief refresher: Along with husband Tareq Salahi, she infamously crashed that White House party while filming "Real Housewives of D.C." in 2009. Apparently, she didn't think her Wikipedia page was sad enough. After initial reports that she was kidnapped, it turns out she has simply run off with Journey guitarist Neal Schon.

We can't help but wonder: Could we have prevented this if we threw her a Talking Points shout-out every once in awhile?

Great clothes, questionable clothes, and no clothes

1: Stylish birthday boy Nas celebrated his 38th on Wednesday night in New York with Zoe Saldana and Jay-Z.

2: The bottom of this dress is a big old mess, so we'll just let you enjoy Maggie Gyllenhaal's cute little smile at the Toronto International Film Festival. But trust us: big old mess.

3: We don't know what Tyra Banks was doing on the set of "Extra" this week. We are, however, glad we weren't anywhere near it.

4: Italian actress — and more notably, George Clooney ex — Elisabetta Canalis unveiled her "I'd Rather Go Naked Than Wear Fur" campaign for PETA in Beverly Hills. Score one for the bunnies/California!

5: Covergirl Christina Ricci was at the Nylon magazine release party earlier this week. Good to see her, but next time, we demand pants.

6: We love Questlove's outfit for Us Weekly's "25 Most Stylish New Yorkers" party on Wednesday.

Erring on the side of tragedy

"GROUPS LAUNCH EFFORT TO PREVENT EXECUTION OF TROY DAVIS", PEOPLESWORLD.ORG, SEPT. 13. A man by the name of Troy Davis is set to be executed by U.S. authorities next week for the 1989 murder of a Georgia police officer. There's just one problem: He may be innocent.

Davis has served nearly 20 years of hard time based almost exclusively on eyewitness testimony — evidence which has now been largely recanted. More distressing: Some evidence has now implicated one of his most persistent accusers as the true culprit.

Still, he may have done it. Which do you think is worse: A guilty man going free or an innocent man being put to death?

Phillies beat Fish, decisions ahead

Take two from Marlins ◗ Lidge sharp in first game ◗ Howard wins No. 2 in extras ◗ Three things we saw:

- Game 1: Phils 3, Marlins 1
- Game 2: Phils 2, Marlins 1
- Up next: vs. Cardinals, Friday, 7:05 p.m. (phl17)

GETTY IMAGES

1 Glove love. Utility infielder Pete Orr made two outstanding defensive plays Thursday afternoon subbing for Chase Utley. First, he catapulted into the air and snagged a second-inning looper in the upper webbing of his glove. Then, in the fourth, Orr robbed Greg Dobbs of a base hit. Unfortunately, he didn't make much of an impact at the plate, going 0-for-3.

2 Looking glass. Kyle Kendrick was cruising — he had a no-hitter through four – but Charlie Manuel pulled him in the fifth, after allowing just two hits and one run on 78 pitches. Why? Well, with a playoff spot clinched the Phils skipper didn't want to risk injury. Plus, Manuel wanted to get another hard look at his bullpen since he'll need to whittle down his roster in the coming weeks.

3 It's an arms race. Joe Blanton is back and gunning for a spot. But the 'pen is packed at long reliever, with Kendrick and Vance Worley. Throw in short relievers Brad Lidge, Michael Stutes, David Herndon, Ryan Madson, Antonio Bastardo, and the inn is pretty full. Yesterday, Stutes (two hits, walk) and Bastardo (one hit, walk) both looked shaky, while Lidge got them out of an eighth-inning jam.

MIKE GREGER

What to watch:

Ryan Howard's walk-off double late Thursday won Game 2 in extra innings, putting the Phils' magic number at two.

Weekend clinch?
The Phils could secure their fifth straight NL East title as early as Friday night, if the Braves lose and the Phils beat the Cardinals.

Maclin, the Falcon killer

Offseason illness not stopping receiver ◗ 'Already back' and 'feeling fine' ◗ Looks to improve on some gaudy numbers vs. Atlanta ◗ Offense expecting big game after slow start last week ◗ Ready for Sunday Night Football

In a perfect world Jeremy Maclin would have caught 10 balls for 120 yards in last week's win. It would have been a fairy-tale ending for the St. Louis native who missed most of training camp (and the entire preseason) while battling a mysterious illness.

It didn't work out that way as Maclin made just one reception — a 20-yarder — in the second quarter. But don't blame that on poor conditioning or lingering health issues. The third-year receiver insists he's 100 percent.

"I feel fine, everything [physically] is fine, so I got to go off that," Maclin said. "There's nothing that's stopping me or enabling me to go out there and not do anything that I would normally do."

Quoted

"We're very confident in ourselves. And I think recent success has kind of boosted that confidence ... This is a chance to show everyone that the Eagles are for real, you know, we're the only game on."

JEREMY MACLIN

On TV Sunday

Eagles at Falcons, 8:20 p.m. (NBC)

On Sunday night, he looks to get untracked against a team he has owned in recent years. In two career games versus Atlanta, he has 11 catches for 242 yards. And Maclin's best game as a pro came last October, when he hauled in seven footballs for 159 yards and two touchdowns.

Obviously, he's primed for another big day, right? Not necessarily.

"I think the offense does [expect a big game]," Maclin said. "If that's me catching tons of balls, then that's what it's going to be. If it doesn't go like that, then it doesn't go like that. At the end of the day, the W is all that matters."

Even though the offense admittedly missed on some big opportunities last week, Maclin is confident. He echoed previous comments from Mike Vick, saying that when the Eagles are clicking, there aren't many defenses — if any — that can stop them.

"They [Atlanta] have good corners. We understand that," Maclin said. "We also understand that if we go out there and take care of our business, there's not too many people that can cover us. We're very confident in ourselves."

Owls' best chance to topple JoePa

Temple, Penn State set to battle at the Linc ◗ Paterno calls this best TU team he's ever faced ◗ Owls' losing streak in series dates back to 1941

So what would it mean if this is the year? What if Temple, not that long ago the cupcake on every team's schedule, could knock off cross-state rival Penn State for the first time in 29 meetings?

Maybe not as much as you'd think.

"Obviously any time you go against team with such a storied tradition, if you're fortunate enough to win, it would have great meaning for your program," said first-year Owls coach Steve Addazio. "But it doesn't make or break your season. It's one football game and you want to be careful one game doesn't define your team. But if you win those things, it can catapult you."

Can they win? Listening to Joe Paterno, this Temple team presents more challenges than ever before for his squad. Then again, Paterno would tell you the proverbial "Little Sisters of the Poor" are much tougher than their record really indicates.

GETTY IMAGES

"We had our hands full with them last year," said Paterno of a 22-13 win where the Nittany Lions trailed 13-9 at halftime. "And this is the best Temple team I've seen in all the years we've played. They have size, speed, excellent quarterbacking and two good running backs [Bernard Pierce and Matt Brown]."

So far this season, Temple (2-0) has outscored the opposition, 83-10. Meanwhile, Penn State (1-1) is coming off a 27-11 home thrashing by No. 2 Alabama — and with an imposing Big Ten schedule looming, many think the Nittany Lions might be ripe for an upset.

"Your approach doesn't change in games like this," said Addazio. "Just have a normal work week of practice and preparation, and the emotions of the game will take care of itself. Give yourselves a chance and let the chips fall."
